

Forever True <3

November 11, 2011

I remember the first day I moved into Penn State. The only thoughts going through my mind were I'm so happy to get out of my parent's house, drink tonight, and meet new people. I remember walking down College Ave with my parents and my dad saying, "look there's JoePa!" At the time, I knew who he was, but didn't really care. It's unbelievable how much has changed since my first days in Happy Valley.

Now, it's almost hard to explain the impact that Penn State has had on me. As i sit here writing this with tears in my eyes Penn State has become more than just a University. Penn State became part of my identity, my whole being, my heart. I've never felt more pride than when I was walking around campus surrounded by my fellow peers in Penn State gear, or cheering for my team at football games, and even just sitting around my apartment with some of the most incredible friends that I have ever met in my life. Penn State helped to mold me into the person I am today, and despite all that is going on right now, I could not be more proud of my school. Penn State is about Pride and sticking together; Penn State is like a family and families stick together.

I love Penn State with my whole heart, and I don't need to explain to anyone who is on this site just how much this school means to me. But for those of you on the outside, I promise- you really just don't get it. We Still and Will Always Be Penn State <3

Rebecca Class of 2010

« We Honor Joe — Success With Honor »