“What: Pause at the Paws

Where: Palmer Museum of Art Plaza

When: Wednesday, November 16 at 3:15 p.m.

Join the students of Penn State’s School of Visual Arts for a moment of silence as we place ribbons on the Paws at the Palmer in recognition of victims and survivors of child abuse and sexual assault. Students will have an opportunity to create a personal response as part of a public work of art. The museum galleries will be open as a place of solace and respite for members of the community. Information on the prevention of sexual assault will be available from the Pennsylvania Coalition Against Rape.”
