

Longtime Journalist Sounds Off on Media Coverage

November 29, 2011

“As a longtime broadcast newsman and member of the Penn State community, Lou Prato has a special perspective on the media coverage of the sex-abuse scandal that has rocked the university over the past month. And he doesn’t like what he has seen. “There has been good reporting on the national level, but I am ashamed, embarrassed and I’m angry at how a large contingent of the media has reported and analyzed this story with such a pile-on mentality.””

Click the link below to see Mr. Prato’s eloquent responses to other questions thrown his way.

<http://www.tvnewscheck.com/article/2011/11/28/55649/penn-state-coverage-shows-media-at-worst>

« Invitation for Student Town Hall Forum with President Erickson — Penn State Among the Best in the Sciences »

Tags: coverage, Journalism, Lou, media, Prato