

PennStateStudents.com and @PSUStudents has Launched!

April 2, 2012

The WEstillARE development team is very pleased to introduce our sister site, PennStateStudents.com. PennStateStudents aims to portray any Penn State Student that registers their information at www.PennStateStudents.com and is verified. The potential behind this account is endless.

Feel free to share the text below with your friends or share this post via Social Media.

“ The Pennsylvania State University has ~96,000 students currently enrolled at this time; however, there is no real-time interaction between all of these students and the world. After learning about the @Sweden Twitter account, the idea was formed to have a Twitter account where all current Penn State Students could post, and then before we knew it, www.PennStateStudents.com was born. PennStateStudents is an organic and raw form of expression of PSU Students at any time of the day or night. Ideally, this will lead to real-time reactions of students in regards to current events, interaction with Penn State Alumni and other Twitter users, and finally, building a grander image of the Penn State Student body.

If you're a student, in order to take part in this social experiment, you must visit www.PennStateStudents.com and register your information. Soon thereafter, you will receive an email confirmation with details on how to tweet from the account.

If you're an alumni or an affiliate of Penn State, you can simply go to www.Twitter.com/PSUStudents and follow the account. We then encourage you to interact with any and all students that post something from the @PSUStudents account with a simple reply. We want this to spark discussion between groups of people who would have never interacted before. You can also check out WEstillARE for highlights and features of student activity, Penn State History, and Penn State news and info.
